

What is a "home" jurisdiction? A home jurisdiction is the jurisdiction where you reside, pay taxes and provide nursing services most often.

What is a "host" Jurisdiction? A host Jurisdiction is a jurisdiction where you provide nursing services as a visitor or occasional provider.

Do I need to be registered in my home jurisdiction? Yes, you must be registered and in good standing.

I am already a nurse with CNNB, but I live in another province/territory. Am I eligible for INL registration? If you hold active registration in the province/territory where you live, and your primary practice location is outside of New Brunswick you may be eligible for INL registration.

I am already a nurse with CNNB, I live in New Brunswick, but practice virtually across many jurisdictions. Am I eligible for INL registration? If your practice is split evenly across multiple locations and you do not have a primary jurisdiction of practice, then your "home" jurisdiction is considered the jurisdiction where you live and pay taxes. In this instance, your home jurisdiction would be NB, and you would not be considered for INL registration.

How can I apply to CNNB as an INL applicant? If you have never been registered in New Brunswick and wish to have NB as a host jurisdiction you can apply by following the steps here: <https://cnnb-opinb.ca/en/registration/canadian-rn/>

I am currently registered with CNNB but think I qualify for INL registration. How do I apply? During annual renewal existing members will have the option to renew with INL registration. Simply select this renewal application during the renewal period of October 1 - November 30.

I am a former member and want to reinstate my registration as an INL registration. How do I apply? Follow the reinstatement process here: <https://cnnb-opinb.ca/en/registration/former-rn/> , and please indicate which jurisdiction is your home jurisdiction on the application form.

If you have any questions not answered above please contact us using the CNNB chat service here: <https://cnnb-opinb.ca/en/registration/requirements-rn/> or contact us by email at reg-imm@cnnb-opinb.ca.
